came unto the Road of Schevelen, where the Cannons having spoken his welcome unto the Fleet, after some short time of stay, the Queen of Bohemia with the Prince and Princeſſe of Orange, and all the reſt of the Train took their leave of his Maſteſtie.

Immediately whereupon the Fleet weighed Anchor, and left the Coaſt of Holland, and yeſterday at five of the clock made the North forland, after which they made towards the Dowris, and ſo for Dover.

Whereupon their Lordſhips agreed a Letter of Congratulation

tion unto his Majestie touching his safe Arrival in England, also desiring to know his Majesties pleasure when they should wait upon his Majesty, the which Letter was immediately sent away.

At the House of Commons.

The House received a message with a Letter from General Montague, signifying that on Wednesday the 23. present his Majestie accompanied with his Aunt the Queen of Bohemia, the Prince and Princessse of Orange, with the Dukes of York and Glocester, came aboard the Naseby in Schevelen Bay, and about 11 of the clock clock the Queen of Bobemia, the Prince and Princesse of Orange took their leave of his Majestie, and about 3. in the Afternoon the Duke of York went aboard the London Frigate, and the Duke of Glocester the Swift-sure Frigate, and so weighed anchor, and about 11. that night they were 7. Leagues from the Dutch Coast, at which time the Letter was delivered, and the Gentleman came away.

The said Gentleman being called into the House, he was told by the Speaker, that the House did desire to know if he could

could acquaint them where he thought his Majestie was, unto which he gave this accompt, that by the signal given him, they had sight of Land yesterday at 5. of the clock, for the Guns were then discharged, which was the signal: and at eight of the clock at night the Fleet came to an anchor 4. Leagues off the North forland, and then was within 9. Leagues of Dover: whereupon the House ordered a Committee to draw a congratulatory Letter to be sent unto his Majestie concerning his safe Arrivall in England, and to desire to know know where the House might wait upon him and when. The said Committee werelikewise ordered to make another draught of a Letter to be sent unto the Commissioners of the House, which do attend his Majestie who then immediately withdrew and brought in two Letters, which being Read were agreed unto, and ordered to be sen away forthwith.
